

SOCIETY

An important event of much interest to society here, throughout the State in the wedding of Miss Hattie Stuckey, daughter of the late Major Charles Stuckey, of West Virginia, to Charles Owen, of Cleveland, Ohio, son of Dr. W. W. Owen, of Halifax County, which was celebrated Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock in the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. William Lowndes Peple, 1203 West Franklin Street. The Rev. Frederick Peter, pastor of St. James Church, officiated and only a small company of relatives and friends were present. The drawing-rooms were decorated very simply in garden flowers.

Major Peple gave the bride away. She wore a lovely gown of tulle and silver, and her veil of illusion was fastened with orange blossoms. Her only attendants were the four little girls who held the ribbons—Elizabeth Coke, Charlotte Kent, Elizabeth Peple and Virginia Tabb, and William Owen, of Dennison, was the bride's best man. The little ribbon girls wore white muslin frocks and carried French baskets of flowers in pastel shades.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen left later for a wedding journey. Both belong to old and widely known Southern families and their wedding is of much interest in Virginia and West Virginia.

Marriage Announced.

A pretty function of yesterday afternoon was the linen shower given at the home of Mrs. William Ellyson, 114 South Third Street, in honor of Miss Lowland Harrison, whose wedding will be celebrated Saturday. The decorations were carried out very effectively in old-fashioned garden flowers and a number of Miss Harrison's friends were present.

Johnson-Henson.
Miss Martha Clarice Henson, of Point-dexter, and Richard Potts Johnson, of Annapolis, were married Tuesday in St. John's Chapel, at Point-dexter, by the Rev. Morris S. Eagle. Carroll Henson as matron of honor and Misses Barbara Overton Kean, of Louisiana, and Merry Marshall McGee, of Lynchburg, as bridesmaids. Frederick M. Dixon, United States Navy, was best man, and Samuel B. Henson, of Point-dexter, and Henry A. Flanagan, of Tidewater, were ushers.

The bride wore a gown of white georgette crepe with a white picture hat and carried a bouquet of bride roses. Mrs. Henson wore a pink georgette gown and hat to match and carried a French rose. The bridesmaids wore pink flowered voile gowns with net fascias and leghorn hats, trimmed with pink roses and black velvet, and carried sweet peas.

After a Northern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will reside at Annapolis, where Mr. Johnson is an instructor at the United States Naval Academy.

The guests from a distance were: Miss Caroline G. Johnson and Kenneth Baker, Frederick, Md.; Mrs. Lee Reich, La Plata, Md.; Dr. and Mrs. B. Carroll Henson, Big Stone Gap; Miss Mary M. McGee, Lynchburg.

WANT MORE CAREFUL INSPECTION OF MEATS

Health Officers Condemn as Unfit for Food 4,000 Pounds of Chicken in Cold Storage.

Inspection yesterday of a warehouse of the Merchants' Cold Storage and Ice Manufacturing Company revealed ninety-two cases of chickens, weighing 4,000 pounds and valued at $1,700, that were spoiled and unfit for human consumption. The meat was seized by the city and government inspectors and will be sent with other seizures to the abattoir of Kinzard & Company, at Chicago, to be pressed for grease and fertilizer. The grease will be shipped afterwards to Baltimore for use in greasing machinery.

The chickens were shipped from a packing house in Charlotte, N. C., during a recent hot spell, according to J. T. Gill, assistant food inspector of the City Health Department, and it was thought by him that the congestion of railroads at this time engaged in the movement of soldiers, causing delay in the shipment of meats was largely responsible for their spoiled condition. It is also supposed that during transit the chickens were subjected to a higher temperature than ordinarily is the case.

About 5,000 pounds of meats of different kinds have been seized so far by the inspectors. Inspector Gill and William H. Frieschauer, Jr., an inspector of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, are expected to consume the remainder of the week in the inspection and disposal of the meat. It is believed that between 50,000 and 60,000 pounds of meat will have been seized. As the result of the inspection it is thought that City Health Officer Roy K. Flanagan will call a conference with representatives of the cold storage houses to discuss the matter of laying down rules so as to prevent as far as possible the spoilage of meats. A more careful inspection of meats before being placed in cold storage will probably be demanded.

BENEFIT CARNIVAL

Entertainment to Be Held on Site of New Retreat for the Sick.

To swell the building fund of the new Retreat for the Sick, which will be located at the corner of Grove Avenue and Mulberry Street, those interested in the new hospital have planned a carnival Friday afternoon and evening beginning at 4 o'clock and continuing until 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Thomas S. Bowles is general chairman of arrangements, Mrs. James

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic drug Frezone recently discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of Frezone. It is a magic drug upon a tender, aching corn and instantly, yes, immediately, all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying Frezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, just seem to shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on your dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.—Adv.

Branch Cabell of cards, which will be played in the afternoon, and Mrs. John B. Lightfoot, chairman of the building fund.

The carnival will be held on the lawn of the proposed site of the new building at Grove and Mulberry, and will be featured by music, cards, dancing and other enjoyable activities.

The Retreat for the Sick is just entering its forty-first year of its history. It has been notable for the large amount of charity cases cared for in recent years. Incidental to the drive for fund-raising stamps, Henry Schwartzchild will make an address at 5:30 o'clock.

HOW OLD IS WILLIE?

Detroit Wants to Know Whether or No He Should Have Registered.

How old is Willie Jackson, formerly of 1230 St. John Street, this city, but now residing in Detroit, Michigan? This is a question that is at present perplexing City Clerk Alfred H. McDowell, who is in receipt of a letter from the adjutant-general of Michigan, stating that the negro is being held in Detroit, charged with failure to register under the selective service act.

In his own defense, the negro stated to the officials that he did not know what year he was born, and for that reason was unable to determine whether or not he was affected by the law. Mr. McDowell was unable to obtain the desired information from the office of the local Health Department, and inquiry at the office of the clerk of the Hustings Court proved equally fruitless. For this reason it was requested that the matter be called to the attention of the public. Can any one solve the mystery?

Great Woman Spy Tells Life Story

Author Gives Stirring Revelations of German's Far-Reaching Espionage System.

WRITTEN BY MISS OLGA VON HALL.
EDITED BY HENRI DE HALL-SALLE.
(Copyright, 1917, by Henri de Hall-Salle, by the International News Bureau, Inc.)

At this Kovanko waxed angry. "And what business, Captain Brisson," he cried, "is it of yours? Why do you not employ your remarkable intelligence in your own country, which needs it sadly, since the whole of France has been overthrown by German spies for the last twenty years?"

The governor of Kronstadt raised his right hand. "Tell me this, Alexander," he exclaimed, "did Miss Von Kopf first ask you to see some of the defenses of this island? Tell me that, please."

"No, my dear uncle, no, my general," Miss Von Kopf asked me nothing. It was I who asked her to see Fort Paul, Fort Kronstadt, and Battery Nicolas. She was not at all anxious to go, but, my dear uncle, what can one show to a visitor to this island—the cathedral, yes, and what else . . . the verdure and the beauty of the landscape, here, in Kronstadt, in September? Really, I must protest against these insinuations, brought about by a French officer, who, it may be, is suffering from spy-mania. I repeat, Miss Von Kopf is the daughter of an old friend of Madame Nogloff's, and any friend of that good and respected lady of this city is a friend of mine and yours, my general."

After this outburst by young Kovanko I the better appreciated Madame Nogloff's remarks about his hand-someness. "The young engineer did look something godlike in his defense of me . . . I began to feel safer—in the governor's prison-like house."

But the French captain, with vindictiveness still in his eyes, had something more to say.

"General Lebedeff," he said, in cool, calculating tones, "I admire your nephew's defense of this lady. It is what one expects from a young man"—here young Kovanko clenched his fists—"but his knowledge of this person" (my blood boiled at this), "his knowledge of this person extends only to a few hours, and—"

"Captain Brisson, you are what the English call a 'cad'!" replied the young engineer.

"I thank you for your description of me," replied the captain, "but you know nothing about this lady. I do!"

"My dear Captain," Brisson interrupted the general, "this is a most painful matter for me. My nephew's word I believe above any man's. He loves Kronstadt and Russia as much as myself. I cannot believe that any friend of his, male or female, can be a spy."

"My general," here the French captain lit a cigarette, "my general, you know me; you know I am not one to fly to conclusions; you know the service I represent. I tell you this woman, so-called Miss Von Kopf, is a spy in the employ of Germany."

"You persist, my dear captain; well, well, it is very unfortunate; but your accusation can be proved or disproved. You say that this lady is a German spy—you declare on your word of honor that you know that is true?"

"My general, I am a certain of it—as I am certain of the impregnability of Kronstadt."

I stood still. Kovanko had sunk in a chair. On his face glimmered a smile, a superior smile, which seemed to say, "What on earth does all this matter?" But the governor of Kronstadt had no such smile. A spy at the gates in such a burg! There was nothing more serious in life.

The general now turned to me. "You are silent, Miss Von Kopf," he said. "Have you anything further to say to this captain?"

"I have little further to say," I replied, "except that Captain Brisson is making a great mistake. He does not know me, nor do I know him. You, General Lebedeff, evidently know the gentleman; but, as far as I am concerned, I do not recognize that he is even a Frenchman, although his French would suggest as much. Now do I know that he is an officer of the French army. Certainly his uniform is French, but how do you, general, know that Captain Brisson is not himself a German spy?"

At this turning of the tables General Lebedeff smiled grimly. The Frenchman was angry. Raising his voice, and looking at the general and young Kovanko in turn he cried: "Must I come all the way from France to tell the woman is a spy? I know her to be one. At the Hotel Adlon in Berlin she stole my papers out of my trunk, and handed them to a commissioner of police, who promptly sent me over the frontier. I again declare to you, General Lebedeff, this woman is a German spy, and if I am wrong you may send me to the mines of Siberia, or have me shot to-morrow morning in the courtyard below."

The general looked at me enquiringly. I answered:

"That man is a liar," I said. "Uncle, uncle," exclaimed young Kovanko, "will you allow this lady to be insulted further?"

"Pardon me, young sir," retorted the captain, "but this is a serious matter. Whatever his excellency the governor may decide, I say this, and I say it in the name of France, whose noble ally you are—this woman is a German spy, and must be put under arrest."

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

AMUSEMENTS

"The Mimic World" at the Lyric.

"The Mimic World," a rollicking musical comedy, with an acting cast of twenty-two singers, dancers, comedians and pretty girls, will supplant vaudeville at the Lyric the remainder of the week, commencing with the matinee performance to-day. "The Mimic World" is the most elaborately staged of the tabloid music comedies now on tour. A large beauty chorus and ballet supplements the acting cast and contributes to the sprightliness of the gay musical extravaganza. Between the scenes of the comedy a special added attraction will be presented. Joe Tili and Coney Ward, a team of singing and dancing eccentrics, who have a repertoire of sensational grotesque dances and fanciful fun. During the engagement of the musical comedy there will be no change in the time for performance, the vaudeville time schedule being maintained. Augmenting the production there will be the usual motion picture displays.
